radiology at the U.S. Health Science Center in San Antonio. In 1991, he resigned from his post to re-train computer science at the University of North Carolina. After graduating in 1994, he stayed for a year as an associate professor of computer science research with a joint appointment to the Department of Neurosurgery, working in medical image analysis. His next stop was the SAS Institute, which worked on SAS/Insight for a year, a statistical graphics package. Finally, deciding that computer graphics and geometry were his real calling, Dave went to work for NDL (which is now Emergent Game Technologies), then magic software, Inc., which later became geometric tools, Inc. Dave's participation in the discussion group comp.graphics.algorit president of Geometric Tools, Inc. (www.geometrictools.com), a company that specializes in computer graphics development, image analysis, and numerical methods. He was previously director of engineering at Numerical Design Ltd (NDL), the company responsible for the real-time 3D gaming engine, NetImmerse. His background includes a BA in mathematics from Bloomsburg University, an MS and PhD in mathematics from U Colorado in Boulder, and an MS and PhD degrees in computer science from U north Carolina at Chapel Hill.
